The Annual Look at Philatelic Publication Circulation

by Kenneth Trettin

For those publications in the U.S. mailing at the periodicals rate, October 1 represents yet another deadline: PS Form 3526 – Statement of Ownership, Management, and Circulation. The Fourth Quarter issue of The Philatelic Communicator brings yet another tradition: our annual examination of the circulation figures for philatelic publications. The accompanying table summarizes this information.

Publication	2 0 0 4		2003	2002	1998	2004 as a % of		2003 as a % of 2002
	Average	Nearest				2003	1998
American Philatelist	45,882	46,038	49,212	49,313	53,878	93.23%	85.16%	99.80%
Linn's	42,068	41,390	46,417	52,574	65,020	90.63%	64.70%	88.29%
Scott Stamp Monthly	22,202	28,454	22,568	25,853	26,357	98.38%	84.24%	87.30%
S.S.M. (nearest issue)		28,454				126.08%	107.96%	-
(W) Stamp Collector	-0-	-0-	11,477	13,037	13,463	-	-	-
Mekeel's & Stamps	5,465	5,511	5,430	5,710	7,125	100.54%	76.70%	95.10%
U.S. Stamp News	4,341	4,475	4,172	4,017	4,606	104.50%	94.25%	103.89%

Last year John Dunn, publisher of Mekeel's & Stamps Magazine and United States Stamp News, looked at the current year, the previous year and the year five years' previous. I do not have any circulation number for 1999 so I will again make comparisons to 1998 although this is now six years ago. The figures come from line 15c of the form (Total Paid and/or Requested Circulation) and are the average circulation for the year. For this year I have also included the circulation for the "Actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date."

Probably the most notable feature of this year's table is the absence of circulation numbers for (Western) Stamp Collector.* The disappointment in demise of this publication only exceeded my disappointment as this publication went from twice-a-week, to weekly, to fortnightly.

In a phone conversation with Terri Wise, Circulation Director for Linn's, I learned that when (W)SC stopped publication their circulation figures were well below those they reported for 2003. When Amos Press took over the (W)SC they compared the mailing list against those of Linn's and Scott Stamp Monthly. Duplicates had their subscriptions extended; approximately 6,000 new subscribers were added to Scott Stamp Monthly and 2,000 to Linn's.

If you look at the nearest issue circulation numbers and the twelve-month average for Scott Stamp Monthly, you will notice the nearest issue had a circulation of 6,252 issues more than the average. This is due in large part to the addition of the (W)SC subscribers. However, they also reported that "Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales" was 4,511 for the nearest issue and 2,254 for the twelve-month average.

REFLECTIONS

As we look over Ken Trettin's analysis of publication circulation, change is apparent. Gone is Stamp Collector. There's a bit of an infusion to Linn's & Scott Monthly chiefly from former subscribers to Stamp Collector. Perhaps the "shining lights" are John Dunn's publications, both of which, admittedly at a lower overall level, may be persevering.

Recently I received a book catalog from Krause Publications. Just about every collectible imaginable (and a few that are not) are covered, except stamp collecting. With the sale to Amos Press, that's to be expected, but a bit sad none-the-less.

On the other hand, the Winter Amos Advantage Stamp Product Guide arrived at about the same time. It contains a rich array of books.

SEMINAR

Members in the New York metro-area might consider the PrintMedia Conference & Expo. It's being held at the Hilton New York in New York City on March 7-9, 2005 (Expo just March 8 & 9). Complete information from their Website: www.PrintMediaExpo.com.

Full registration at $550 ($650 after January 28) may be a bit on the pricey side, but there is a free Exhibit Hall & Keynote Address Pass if you register before January 28. This pass will cost $25 after that date.

OUTREACH

Outreach continues to be very important for the well being of our hobby. An outstanding example is the work of Michael Nowlan. See the story on page 8. There is also a good message from Hermann Sieger in this issue. The long and short of it—portray the hobby as interesting.

RECORD BREAKER

Les Winick sent in a note. He said it was snowing in Chicago and he needed a break from his computer and decided to inventory his columns—the result 2,712 columns! About 900 of these were in the lay press, so Les may also have set an outreach record as well. Can any WU30 members come close to this?

CCP

As you know, after five years, I decided to step down as editor of the Collectors Club Philatelist. At the Board of Governors' Open House on December 15, 2004, I was very pleased and honored to receive the Club's President's Medal for my services. □

President's Message

by Peter Martin

Thanks to the input from many of you our Website name has been identified and, thanks to Webmaster Andrew McFarlane, we are in the process of reserving our domain name: www.WU30.org.

The next step is to identify the main items to be listed there. Current plans call for links to WU#30 membership information, including an application form; the Philatelic Communicator; WU#30 (intro); WU#30

Publications; Contact us; Book Reviews; Literature Exhibitions (with results) and Useful Links. If you have other ideas about what should be on the site, write or e-mail me by January 1.

WU#30 ELECTIONS

2005 will be an election year for WU#30. Anyone interested in running for a position, including incumbents, must notify me by January 15, 2005. If there are any contested positions, candidates will be asked to submit a statement/resume of no more than 300 words to be published in the election issue of the Philatelic Communicator.

LITERATURE EXHIBITIONS

This year marked the successful debut of the NAPEX literature exhibition. NAPEX joined STAMPSHOW, COLOPEX, SESCAL and CHICAGOPEX as United States shows with regular literature exhibitions.

The new literature judging sheet seems to be working well. It still needs some tweaking but the main thrust of providing all types of literature the opportunity to receive the full spectrum of awards has been achieved.

The content and design of journals continue to improve and the quality of many of the books being published today is superb. From country studies like Bob Odenweller's The Stamps and Postal History of Nineteenth Century Samoa, to specialized studies such as Robert B. Morgan's The Hungarian Hyperinflation of 1945-1946 and the Harrison-Arfken-Scringeour Canada's Registered Mail, 1802-1909, to the esoteric like Alan Hicks' Civil War Era Occupational Licenses 1863-1873, we are fortunate to belong to a hobby with such outstanding reference works.

WRITERS BREAKFAST IN ATLANTA

We will have our customary Writers Breakfast at the APS Winter Meeting, Ameristamp Expo, that will be held in Atlanta from February 18-20, 2005. The breakfast will be on Sunday, February 20 at 8:30 a.m. in the convention hotel, Renaissance Waverly. The featured speaker will be Bob Odenweller. His subject: "Producing your own book--

What to do and how to avoid making the same mistake once." The cost of the breakfast is $20. A registration form and full information about the show may be downloaded from the APS Website at <http://www.stamps.org/AmeriStamp/Intro.htm>, or contact Ken Martin at 100 Match Factory Place, Bellfonte, PA 16823, phone 814 933-3803 ext 218, fax 814 933-6128, e-mail: stampshow@stamps.org.

NEW ADDRESS

As some of you already know, I recently moved to Connecticut. While my e-mail address is still pmartin2020@aol.com, my new mailing address is: Box 4503, Danbury, CT 06813. I look forward to your comments and input as we continue to move the writer's unit forward.

Happy Holidays and a very Happy New Year to you all. Don't forget to make that New Year's resolution to publish at least one philatelic article in a nonphilatelic publication.

We should all continue watch the circulation numbers for Scott Stamp Monthly. The issue reported as the nearest to filing was the November issue. This was the second issue after the conversion from tabloid to magazine format. The change brought slick paper and good quality color in a definite attempt at appealing to magazine counter sales. This has to be a positive move for both the magazine and philately.

There is another circulation number given in these reports: that is the total free distribution. This figure includes those stacks of sample copies at the entrance to many stamp shows. This can amount to quite a few additional copies (953 for Mekeel's & Stamps [17.4% of their paid circulation]).

Free circulation might be even higher for one publication not listed—Global Stamp News. For some time they have printed “33,000 Circulation” on their banner. Since they mail by bulk rate, they do not file a 3526 so their paid circulation is unknown. However, their sample copies almost always make an appearance at WPS shows and others.

Circulation numbers seem to reflect what we see in all of our philatelic society membership numbers. The numbers for the American Philatelist are a direct reflection of membership numbers: down almost 7% over last year and 15% more than six years ago; Linn's is down almost 10% over last year and 35% more than six years ago; Scott Stamp Monthly is down almost 2% and 15% more than six years. Mekeel's & Stamps held its own but is down more than 23% since six years ago while US Stamp News is up 4% but down 6% in Six years. Scott Stamp Monthly provided the only really good news (although at the expense of (W)SC in that when you compare their November issue circulation with last year's average, they are up more than 26% and almost 8% over that of six years ago.

Comparing the 2003 as a per cent of 2002 with the 2004 as a per cent of 2003, we see the rate of decline might be slowing, but it is still a general decline. Let us all hope that the survivors have the ability to survive and provide for our hobby's needs.

*Wayne Youngblood, the former Editor of (Western) Stamp Collector, can confirm that I never fully accepted the name change. In fact, I encouraged everyone to call the paper the Mid-Western Stamp Collector. □

NEW EDITOR FOR GERMAN POSTAL SPECIALIST

James W. Graue has recently been named editor of the German Postal Specialist, journal of the Germany Philatelic Society. Jim is a member of the Council of WU30, a noted author and editor of the Air Post Journal. Good luck and may your in-box overflow with fine manuscripts! □

Suggestions to Future Authors

by Stanley J. Luft,
Editor France & Colonies Philatelist

Editor's Note: Originally appeared in the April 2003 issue of the France & Colonies Philatelist. Reprinted with the permission of the author.

TEXT

Type double-spaced (1.75 space if you have the capability of doing so) on 8½ x 11" (or A4) paper, on one side only. Leave 1" (2.54 cm) margins at sides and bottom, and 1½" margin at top of your title page.

References and citations can be flexible; use recent journal articles as guides. Endnotes, being easier to set and read, are preferable to foot notes, but up to three footnotes should be OK.

ILLUSTRATIONS

If possible, leave some margins around your illustrations, and number them consecutively in soft pencil. Do not paste or tape them down on our manuscript pages; that's my job! Ordinary but clear photographs (or preferably originals) of cuts, sketches, maps, etc., are OK. For stamps and covers, halftones or very clear photocopies will normally do.

Jim Graue, the longtime editor of the very fine Air Post Journal, recommends black-and-white photocopies on a Canon color laser printer for best results; these printers are available at Kinko's and other print shops. Whatever works best for you, but remember that you want your article to have the best quality illustrations possible.

All originals, and all quality copies that you might wish to keep, will be returned to you within four months of publication.

JOINT PUBLICATION

If you are considering the possibility for joint publication with another journal, please contact me in advance; disseminating information to audiences that don't normally subscribe to the same periodicals is usually a good thing for our hobby. However, please don't submit your manuscript to other journals without advising me; it's very disconcerting to edit or even rewrite parts of a manuscript only to learn it has already been published elsewhere, with another editor's revision. □

AUCTION SEARCH

A great way to search for a particular philatelic item on various auctions, which have their catalogs in the websites, is: http://www.philasearch.com/main.php3?set_sprache=en&set_page=haus&set_id. You can search by keyword and the results show you relevant items in various auctions. I find it very useful. Another good site for finding auctions, is: <http://stampauctionnetwork.com/>

CHEAP WAY TO BACKUP YOUR DATA

In the last two years, I have had the hard drives crash on two different computers. So that I do not lose my files and data in that event, I backup everything on a separate external hard drive, which simply plugs into one of the computer's USB ports. I recently bought (on the Internet), a 160GB hard drive for $160.00. I find this is the least expensive and easiest way to backup my files and data. I will be glad to furnish the supplier's name. Just email me at: kaerophil@ch.inter.net.

BUYING & SELLING PHILATELIC MATERIAL ON eBAY

I recently wrote a two-part article on buying and selling philatelic material on eBay. Part 1 covers buying material and part 2 covers selling material. This was published in The Airpost Journal of the American Air Mail Society (AAMS). If you are not an AAMS member and did not see the article, I will be glad to send it. Just email me at: kaerophil@ch.inter.net.

AUTOMATIC WINDOWS UPDATE

If you are using Microsoft Windows XP, I recommend setting your computer to download the Windows Updates automatically. This will keep your computer up to date and help to protect you from nasty things that try to get into your programs, such as Outlook. To set this up, click "START," "All Programs," "Windows Update." This will open the Windows Update page in Internet Explorer. You can then select "Express Install" or "Custom Install." You can also pick a time to automatically receive the Windows Updates, which should be a time when you are normally using the computer and connected to the Internet.

PROBLEM WITH WEBSITE LOADING?

Do you sometimes encounter a problem with a website or page downloading completely? If you are using Netscape, then try opening the page with Internet Explorer. If you are using Internet Explorer and a page will not open properly, then try it with Netscape. The other thing that can keep a web page from opening properly, is your firewall program, or its settings. I use Zone Alarm, and when I have a problem with a web page not downloading completely, or the links not working, I simply turn off Zone Alarm temporarily. It usually solves the problem. You can also try changing the firewall settings to a lower security level.

PROBLEMS FOR SOME PEOPLE TO OPEN WINWORD FILES

If you have a recent version of MS Office (for example, the 2003 edition), and you send Word files to other people, some of them more than likely have trouble trying to open the documents. This is because some people who have older versions of Word, can't open a Word document written with the 2003 version. The best thing to do is save your Word document as an earlier version. When you do File, Save As, go into "Save as type," and select "Word 97-2003 & 6.0/95 - RTF." Then most people who have earlier versions of Word will be able to open your document.

SPACES BETWEEN SENTENCES IN WORD

When typing in Word, I have always used one space after a period. Some people say there should be two spaces. In some versions of Word, when you type something with only one space after a period and then do a spelling/grammar check, their system flags an error. On my computer, I can type one, two or even three spaces after a period to start a new sentence and the spell checker does not flag an error. I understand that it is not good practice in word processing or desk top publishing to use two spaces after a period. However, if your version of Word flags an error with two spaces, there is a setting in Word under Tools, Options, Spelling & Grammar - Grammar Settings. You can check for one space, two spaces or not check at all. I would be interested in our readers' opinion about which is correct—one space or two.

WRITING/LAYOUT MENTORING

Barth Healey, a senior staff editor at The New York Times and an accredited national and international literature judge, is ready, willing and able to review society journals and other publications and offer some constructive comments. He has also had extensive writing and layout experience. Send two or three recent issues to him at 86 Bar Beach Road, Port Washington, NY 11050-4029. (Supplying return postage would be a nice gesture.)

—Jonathan Swift

An Open Letter from Hermann Walter Sieger

Dear Collectors:

All of us love our hobby, stamp collecting, one of the most beautiful leisure activities in the world. People say that there is no new generation in sight but they would like to try to attract new collectors—that is why I am writing this article.

We have to make a distinction between stamp collecting and philately. The philatelist enjoys the six varieties of color of the stamp brown-purple. This subject could be very well suited for a one-frame-exhibit. This will confuse those people however, whom we want to attract to stamp collecting, in fact they will even be scared off.

German Reich No. 115 — pink-lilac over purple-red, crimson-lilac, dark crimson, red-purple to

POPULAR INSTEAD OF ELITIST

The first collectors were Ladies in Great Britain who tried to hoard as many issues as possible of the “Penny Black.”

Later the collectors’ aim was to own as many different stamps as possible. Even today many enjoy collecting this way and are happy. These collectors do not care about perforation, watermarks or variations of paper. They get a lot of pleasure out of the stamps coming from a range of countries. Later one starts to “collect by country” and after that, slowly, comes specialization.

We, the “old” philatelists, collect in an elitist, high-caliber, virtually scientific way. We exhibit and collect sometimes not really the stamps, but gold medals from stamp exhibitions.

The base however are the “stamp collectors,” and for them the colorful stamps, as they are depicted on this page, are much more important than the six color variations of number 115. Children are not encouraged to read if one gives them Shakespeare, Dante, Goethe or Dostoevski. Children want to read “Mickey Mouse” and later maybe “Bravo.” After some years maybe the interest for serious literature emerges.

We do not lure new collectors with postal history, with varieties or variations, but with interesting colorful stamps from far away countries, where the general public has no opportunity to travel, e.g., Nepal or the Antarctic territories.

The readers of this publicity are most probably all philatelists, therefore my appeal to you. If you want to attract people to collect stamps then you have to think and persuade, not in an elitist, but in a popular way.

Show these people the beautiful, fascinating and popular postage stamps. Subsequently, many may find their way to our wonderful hobby, stamp collecting.

Some of them will, after a certain time, become philatelists as we are. So do not belittle those who start a collection of “Marilyn Monroe on stamps.” Someday, maybe, this collector will become someone who will exhibit this exquisite topic internationally.

The great sports people have all started on a low scale, the formula-one drivers with a go-cart, the soccer players in their backyards or on the street. Stamp collecting, and with it the entire world of philately, starts with colorful postage stamps.

Cordially Yours,

Hermann Walter Sieger

Unlocking the Door: Keys for Print Buying Success

by Mike & Joe Mason

Editor's Note: Reprinted with permission from PrintTips, the newsletter of Leesburg Printing.

Long ago we learned that our success is directly tied to what our customers think of us compared to the experience of buying from other printers. To make our company distinctive, we've invested a lot in developing the technical expertise as well as the customer service skills of our inside and outside sales staff. This enables us to analyze a printing requirement with an eye toward suggesting alternatives or options that will help our customers realize success in buying printing.

Whether you buy printing regularly or occasionally, in this issue of The Philatelic Communicator we'll offer you some keys to successful print buying.

KEY #1: BE AN INFORMED PRINTING BUYER

Buying printing is like buying anything else of value—the more you know about it, the better your purchase decision will be. That's part of why we send you this newsletter. We want you to understand what goes into manufacturing the product you are buying so you won't unintentionally make mistakes that will compromise either the printing or the budget.

Of course, we don't expect, you to know as much as we do. It is our job to keep abreast of emerging communications and printing reproduction technologies. But we do suggest that you master the basics of the manufacturing process — design, printing, and finishing.

KEY #2. UNDERSTAND GRAPHIC DESIGN

Whether you are designing your printed materials at your desk or having us provide design services, you should understand the basics of good graphic design. If you are designing yourself, it will help you produce printed materials that are more successful in accomplishing their job.

If we are designing, it will help you provide what graphic design professionals call art direction — helping us understand what you have in mind for the “look and feel” of the finished product.

According to Jacci Howard Bear, a freelance desktop publisher, writer and instructor in desktop publishing on the Web, designs have five basic elements that convey the message of a printed piece. These elements are lines, shapes, mass, texture and color or, alternatively, form, space and value. To take a free class on the web from Jaccil go to <http://desktoppub.about.com>.

One of our favorite books for understanding graphic design, is The Non-Designer's Design Book by Robin Williams. It contains easy-to-understand design and typographic principles for what the author calls the visual novice, has won awards and is #1 on the bestseller list for its genre.

If most of your design work is forms, you have a special challenge. You must organize content, instructions, and response options into something visually compelling enough that the user will take time: to complete it.

For a useful overview of the considerations for forms design go to <http://www.formsthatwork.com> and select the document Designing Usable-Forms by Caroline Jarrett.

KEY #3: UNDERSTAND LAYOUT

Intimately tied to graphic design is layout — the arrangement of graphic elements on the page. From our perspective as your printer, all the books on graphic design leave out a crucial element for the success of the printed piece: allowance for finishing functions.

The printing term for finishing is bindery and it consists of such things as cutting, trimming, folding, stitching, drilling and book binding. When your printed project requires any of these bindery functions, it necessarily affects the layout of the document. For example, if you are designing a brochure that folds in thirds, you need, to size the panel that folds to the inside so it is slightly smaller than the other panels. This allows the panel to tuck neatly inside and the covering panel to be fully flush to the fold. The adjustment isn't much — less than an eighth of an inch — but without it, the fold will not be perfect.

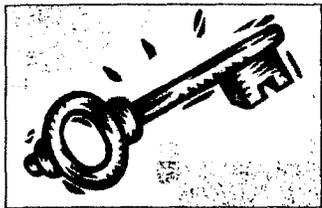

Similarly, page margins for the live area of the printing may need to be adjusted to account for drilling, cutting or trimming. For example, if you are laying out a training manual that will be put into a 3- ring binder or coil bound, you will need to have a larger left-hand than right-hand margin to allow for the holes. And if the manual will be printed on two sides, you will have to alternate the larger margin from the left-hand side for odd-numbered, pages and the right-hand side for even-numbered pages.

KEY #4: UNDERSTAND SOFTWARE PROGRAMS

We have devoted entire Issues of PrintTips to preparing files that will print. What we want to remind you now is to use the right tool for the job and use the functions within the program for preparing a file to submit to us.

Most printers, including us, prefer the Macintosh platform but work equally well on PCs. If you prefer a PC, consider Adobe InDesign, and MS Publisher — two programs that have been written with both the office desktop publisher and the professional pre press technician in mind. Both have functions within the program that collect fonts and graphics as you prepare a file, to submit to us. (Of, course, we still need you to check color space so you don't submit an RGB file.)

KEY #5: SUBMIT FILES VIA THE WEB, NOT E-MAIL

Did you know that we have a file transfer function available at our website? By logging on to www.leesburgprinting.com you will be able to browse in your computer and upload your file directly to our website. KEY #6: BE WILLING TO CONSIDER AN ALTERNATE PRINTING METHOD

If you are a frequent print buyer, you may have developed a clear preference for a particular method of reproduction and specify it for all your projects. Be open to alternatives that we may suggest, particularly if you haven't tried them in a while. Years ago, when laser imaging produced relatively large pixels and toner particles were relatively coarse, digital imaging couldn't reproduce photographs and fine lines as well as off-set printing.

Today the quality differences are much less pronounced. In fact, of greater significance is the more limited range of substrates that can be used in digital printers versus offset presses. If we are suggesting a switch from offset to digital, ask us to produce a sample print and judge the quality for yourself.

KEY #7: TALK TO US

The best way to get the most for your printing dollar is to talk to us. And if you are planning a current printing project, the earlier you bring us in, the better. We can arrange for a meeting here in our facility or we will be glad to come to your office. Call Joe Mason at 1-800-828-3348 or e-mail email@leesburgprinting.com to arrange a convenient time to meet.

An Outreach Spectacular

When the letter from Michael Nowlan arrived with the clippings of his many writings in the "lay press," it was something special and it was filed in a special place. As it turned out—far too special a place and I overlooked it completely when gathering together the other entries. Apologies were rendered and a certificate prepared and sent for signatures.

However, this is a success story that should be told. Michael certainly deserves the recognition and his example hopefully will spur others to follow.

The Daily Gleaner is the daily newspaper in Fredericton, New Brunswick. Michael has a regular monthly stamp column. It used to be weekly, but he has convinced the editor to continue it. The graphics are great and the articles a good read with a general audience in mind. A special Christmas story was on the front page of the "WeekEnd" section. It took the entire page plus a continuation column. Large illustrations of stamps were shown in full color, with the Canadian 1898 Christmas Map Stamp and it's delightful story leading the way.

Michael also had a series in The Officers' Quarterly, the journal of the York-Sunbury Historical Society. This was in five parts. It tied the history of the province and postal history very nicely. Part three was featured on the cover with an enlargement of Canada's 1934 New Brunswick commemorative.

Again using a tie to the organization, four articles illustrating the connections between the Mounties (RCMP) and stamps appeared in The Quarterly a publication of RCMP Veterans' Association of Ottawa. Lastly a good story on Irish stamps for The Shamrock Leaf, the journal of The Irish /Cultural Association of New Brunswick.

In his writings, Michael Nowlan keyed on a strong connection between his readers and the stamps about which he was writing. He also consistently provided excellent and appropriate graphics.

Congratulations on a job well done! JEF

Reviews from those having an interest in the item such as publishers, distributors, etc., must include a copy of the publication with the review [which, on request, we will return]. Philatelic Communicator reviews should be concise and stress those aspects that are helpful examples (positive or negative) for other authors, editors and publishers.

Folken runt Östersjön (Peoples Around the Baltic Sea)* by Lars Enkler, Hjalmarson & Högberg, Stockholm, 2003, 160 pages, 8½ by 12", hardbound, in Swedish, approximately $40 plus shipping from the publisher, 76320 Hallstavik, Sweden, ISBN 91-89660-33-1.

This richly illustrated book will appeal to anyone interested in stamps as well as regional European history. The author first developed an award-winning philatelic exhibit which then grew into this handsome text.

Beginning with ancient history and exploration that eventually led to the settlement of areas in northern Europe, the story moves on through the Viking era, citing pertinent history and geography of the region. The influence of the church, the establishment of ports as trade and commerce expanded, and the Reformation follow, all illustrated with philatelic material, especially stamps.

The rise of Sweden as a major power and the conflicts in the area are briefly noted followed by chapters on the Enlightenment, Napoleon's time, the awakening of nationalism, and conditions in the Baltic areas at the turn of the 20th century. A chapter on World War I brings attention to the resulting changes in national borders and especially the effects on Finland. Rapid changes in communications such as the telephone and air transportation affected the lives of everyone.

World War II and its aftermath also greatly affected the peoples of this region, and Russia's changing influence on the Baltic States is described. Today efforts to bring about cooperation and unity among the countries touching the Baltic Sea have had a positive effect.

A remarkable feature of this book is that every page contains five to ten illustrations in beautiful color. Although they are largely philatelic items such as stamps, covers, souvenir sheets, and cancellations, there are also historic photos and other documents, and pictures of people and places that enhance the story. Each stamp illustration is marked with the year of issue. Notes on and sources of the illustrative material are found at the back of the book, along with tables of the royalty and heads of state of these countries up to the present.

This book makes a wonderful gift, especially for Swedish language readers.

Scott Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps & Covers, 2005 Edition*, James E. Kloetzel editor, Scott Publishing Co., 911 Vandemark Road, Sidney, OH 45365, 2004, 900 pages + 76 introductory pages, 8¼ x 10¾", soft cover, color illustrations, $54.99, ISBN 0-89487-338-5.

With the advance notice that the 2005 Scott U.S. would have color illustrations, this reviewer fully expected another $100 catalog with poor quality illustrations similar to last year's Scott Classic. It's great to be wrong! This time Scott has really done a quality job. Coated paper has been used and with few exceptions the illustrations are sharp and the colors, in almost all cases, are a very close match to the actual stamps. Indeed the quality is very close to what we have experienced with the better auction catalogs.

There are still a few areas where color has not replaced black and white illustrations. However, the publisher has announced a 100% objective. In most instances where an overprinted stamp is shown, the illustration of the stamp has been attenuated so that the overprint can be more readily viewed. Many varieties and distinguishing characteristics of similar stamps continue to be shown in black and white. These appear to be clearer than before and this might be the result of the coated stock. To be sure, there are a few shades that might benefit from a little tweaking and a few sketches that could be improved, but far from being empty, the bottle is more than 90% full.

Some recent sales, such as the Markovits Officials, were duly recognized both in the listings and the valuations. There are some significant changes both editorially and in pricing. The price is a modest increase over the previous volume.

The Classic catalog now has coated paper stock, greatly enhancing the quality of the color illustrations. While there are still some not yet illustrated in color, there has been improvement from the previous edition. Since its inception, the Classic has continuously expanded the level of detail of the listings. Locals are being added. This year the Suez Canal Company locals have been added to Egypt together with an appropriate caveat regarding forgeries of the issue. A number of other local issues are listed. To give some examples of the coverage, the first two issues of Netherlands are valued for pairs, strips and blocks; some of the early issues of Portugal are priced on cover, on newspaper and/or on newspaper wrapper.

Many, but not yet most, countries have their earlier issues priced on cover. Some indication of the level of increased detail might be suggested in the increase of fifty-two pages in the basic section of the book since the 2003 edition. Bear in mind that this catalog does not have to deal with new issues.

The British area continues beyond 1940 to 1952, the end of the reign of King George VI. These listings did not initially include the WWII Japanese Occupation issues. They were added after the 2002 edition. Some time ago, the standard catalogs grouped the Australian States with Australia and the Canadian Provinces with Canada. While the Classic does group the German States with Germany, the various Canadian Provinces and Australian States are spread throughout the catalog. Consistency here would be an improvement.

Compared with the Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps, this book carries a heavy price. I doubt many consider the hard cover to warrant more than twice the price. However, if the quantity produced of the Classic is considerably less than the U.S., then the fixed costs are spread over fewer books. In any event, it is a very useful catalog and any who have not examined this volume for a few years will be pleasantly surprised.

United States and British Exchanges with Japan 1942-1943*, ISJP Monograph No. 14, by Michael E. Ruggiero, International Society of Japanese Philately, Schaumburg IL, 2003, 62 pages, 8½ by 11", soft cover, saddle stitched, $12 postpaid in the United States from Lee R. Wilson, 4216 Jenifer Street NW, Washington DC 20015, ISBN 0-934282-18-8.

In 1942 and 1943 there were exchanges of prisoners and civilians between Japan and both Great Britain and the United States. Several ships were used to effect these exchanges, notably the M.V. Gripsholm among others. By searching archives, contemporary newspapers, and many other sources, Ruggiero was able to reconstruct many of the details concerning these exchanges as an aid to understanding the mail that has survived. This included Canadian mail carried on board as well.

The exchange ships were marked with paint and with special lighting at night so that they would not be targeted by warships. Each of the major ships used in the exchanges is discussed in some detail, including misspellings and incorrect information found in many printed sources, and their status following their use in the repatriation program.

The types of mail associated with the exchanges are described and over two dozen examples are illustrated. The captions indicate which ships carried the particular item and the port involved, but some of the specifics result from guesswork because so little is known. Although there is a variety of handstamp censor markings and resealing tapes, they are not identified.

The author tabulates the movements of the vessels, citing sources for the data. A bibliography provides further reading on the subject. A selection of photographs gives the reader a glimpse of the ships involved in these important missions. This monograph will enable collectors of such mail to understand how it traveled.

The Postal History of the Army of the Black Sea 1918 - 1923* by John Slingsby, Stuart Rossiter Trust, UK, 2004, 234 + xvi pages, A4 size, soft cover, illustrations, maps, indices, bibliography, $70 from Leonard H. Hartmann, Box 36006, Louisville, KY, 40233, ISBN 0 9530004 8 6.

To any unfamiliar with the history of the period, a careful reading of the introduction will "set the stage." The beginning of each major chapter again gives a comprehensive chronicle of the period. This book is an account of the postal history of the employment of British and Indian Armies and the Royal Air Force after the armistice with Bulgaria and the surrender of the Ottoman Empire. This includes military occupation and various missions. The areas included are Macedonia, Western Thrace, Bulgaria, Roumania, Turkey, Transcaucasia, Transcaspiya, Northern Persia and South Russia.

The main section of the book is divided into three parts. Postal History contains separate chapters covering each major geographic area followed by civilian use of the Army Postal Services, censorship, stationery, cachets and rates. Next is "Order of Battle," an account of the locations, movements, mission and accomplishments of the units with a detailed listing of the composition of the major organizations. The third part covers the disposition of troops in three chapters: mounted, infantry and Indian.

There is an extensive bibliography. The majority deals with military history although there is a comprehensive postal history section. Two indices are included: one for the Army Postal Services and a second for the army.

The author has done a splendid job of drawing upon military history to facilitate the understanding of postal history. Highly recommended.

German North Atlantic Catapult Flights 1929-1935* by James W. Graue and Dieter Leder, Jim & Me Ink, Valleyford WA, 2004, 240 pages, 5½ by 8½", card cover, spiral bound, $32 postpaid in the United States from James W. Graue, 11911 East Connor Rd., Valleyford WA 99036.

Expanding on the work of others and with more definitive listings than earlier attempts to identify catapult flight mail, this priced catalog becomes the major reference for this interesting period of handling the mails across the Atlantic. The system was intended to save several days travel time for the mail by launching it via special planes aboard ship while the ships were still at sea. The vessels involved were essentially the Bremen and the Europa.

Introductory text describes the flight cachet, the supplementary airmail flight cachet, and other markings found on these covers such as directional, route, and seapost office marks and advisory notices. Other factors that affect the valuation of catapult covers include use of registered or special delivery services, supplementary United States airmail, combination flights, and German ocean radio letters.

The listings introduce a new catalog numbering system for the catapult flights and identify whether the ship was headed east-to-west or the reverse. A concordance near the end of the catalog correlates these new numbers with those found in the earlier catalogs of Kayssner, DuFour, Stanley-Smith, and Haberer. Each listing includes the date, name of the ship, departure and arrival times, an illustration of the cachets applied (with indication of ink color used), and the distance in kilometers, followed by value listings for origin and final destination. The latter are identified as either Treaty Acceptances or Courtesy Acceptances. Notes are appended if there were delays due to weather. The first Treaty and Courtesy Acceptances are listed at the beginning of the catalog by country with date and catalog number for reference.

Although there is some data here on number of mail pieces, the authors warn that these numbers may not be accurate as some were found to be under-reported in earlier days. The cachet illustrations are quite clear and a number of actual covers are shown throughout the catalog. Additional lists at the end of the catalog include supplementary flights to the ship Columbus, post-catapult period supplementary flights from 1936 to 1939, and an interesting directory of the aircraft and flight crews used each year of the catapult era.

A bibliography of reference works would add utility but is beyond the scope of the catalog. Catapult flights are a fascinating chapter in aerophilately and collectors will be indebted to the co-authors for this definitive listing with improvements over previous sources and with the up-to-date valuations.

Katalog der Deutschen Luftpost, Teil 15: Erst- und Sonderflüge der Deutschen Lufthansa 1998-2002 (Catalog of German Airmail, Volume 15: First and Special flights of German Lufthansa), by Erich Haberer & Hermann Walter Sieger, Wiegand & Haberer, Luftpostliteratur, Renningen, Germany, 2004, 72 pages, soft cover. Available from Aerophil, 12 Chemin des Tuilots, CH-1293 Bellevue (GE), Switzerland. US$12.50 plus US$3.75 for surface postage.

This is the 15th in the series of German Airmail Catalogs. It gives chronological listings of all first & special flights by Lufthansa German Airlines from 1998 through 2002. Lufthansa is one of the few airlines that still arranges for covers to be carried on its first and special flights, and for German post offices to prepare and apply special postmarks for such flights.

All the special postmarks and cachets applied to covers are shown. In a few cases the complete covers are shown. This is a continuation of the earlier editions of the German Airmail Catalog (Volumes 8 through 12) covering Lufthansa first & special flights since 1955. Pricing is in Euros. The text is in German, but it is easy to follow with the aid of a German dictionary.

The Black Proprietary Stamps of 1914-1916 by Scott M. Troutman, American Revenue Association (published as a supplement to The American Revenuer, vol. 58, no. 5, Sept.-Oct. 2004), 94 pages, 8½ x 11", soft cover, saddle stitched, illustrations, index.

When the September issue of The American Revenuer arrived, it seemed quite a bit thicker than usual. Bound in the journal was this very considerable supplement. It was done in such a way that it could be removed leaving both the journal and this supplement with their binding intact.

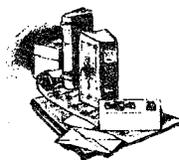

This is an account of a series of stamps (Scott RB32-64) brought into use in 1914 to facilitate the Emergency Revenue Law of that year. Items taxed were perfumes and cosmetics, hair care products, soaps and ointments, toothpastes and mouth washes and chewing gum. The bulk of this work is an extensive listing and explanation of the cancels and perfins associated with the use of these stamps. The illustrations are good, particularly when considering that many of the cancels on these black stamps are also black.

Other sections of the book include related history and tax laws, tax rates, an account of the stamps and their watermarks, plate varieties, census of plate blocks and half panes, information on companies and products and tax decisions related to these stamps.

A extensive index concludes the book. The author has acknowledged an earlier work by Harold Field, but does not provide bibliographic information. Contributors are recognized. This is a useful and extensive treatment of a "back-of-the-book" subject.

LETTERS

From Jerome C. Jarnick: From Augustine Serafini's bit on "Our Wonderful English Language" in the last Philatelic Communicator, it is obvious that he's badly misinformed on the meaning of UP. Any Michigander will readily explain that there is one and only one meaning of UP, Michigan's Upper Peninsula, ya!

From Jim Graue: Everyone is sending / using electronic images. There are those who are married to PDF. There are others for whom image quality comes first and they get it with TIF, who specifically refuse to take PDF and insist on TIF. JPG is apparently riding the bench here. So who is using what and why?

One of the apparent PDF problems is that the edit (not read) program is pricey and not commonly found. In our experience, PDF is not remotely as sharp as TIF. Anyway, we think this would be a discussion of value and could evolve into a suggested spec that editors could use as a standard for their publications. Secrets of the procedures used to "final prep" images for publication would also be nice.

From Hermann Walter Sieger: Of course, I agree that you reprint my message in the next issue of your journal.

Concerning the Marilyn Monroe stamp from the United States I remember a day when I gave a speech to a very sophisticated stamp club. I also told these people how important these nice colorful new stamps are to get new collectors. At the end I showed them the sheet of the US Marilyn Monroe stamp and asked them: "Gentlemen, who of you would not like to spend some time with this girl?"

All agreed and all got a sample of the sheet from me as a gift and I'm sure some of them who normally collect very expensive antique stamps started maybe a small collection "Stars and Starlets on Stamps." □
